Laurentian University Launches Construction of New Computer and Reading Room

Earlier this year, Mr. Jerry Ouellette, Parliamentary Assistant to the Minister of Northern Development and Mines, announced that Laurentian University will receive $610,000 from the Government of Ontario's SuperBuild fund, which seeks to build and modernize post-secondary institutions as well as improve the quality of education and help prepare for an expanded student demand. This funding will enable Laurentian University to build the Brenda Wallace Reading Room and Computer Centre.

The construction of the Brenda Wallace Reading Room and Computer Centre, which will be housed in a new two-storey addition to the existing J.N. Desmarais Library, was launched in early May. Construction will be completed by September 2000, in time for the new school year. The first floor of the addition will house a computer lab consisting of 30 workstations. The second floor will consist of a fully wired reading room, an essential tool for the contemporary university student.

"This Centre, which will add 75 student spaces at Laurentian, is expected to become a gathering place for students and professors from all disciplines on campus. The Brenda Wallace Reading Room and Computer Centre will house an ever-changing array of research tools, both print and digital, for teaching, learning and research.

The addition of the Brenda Wallace Reading Room and Computer Centre will enable the University to advance in the development of its information technology infrastructure," explained Dr. Jean Watters, Laurentian University President. "By increasing student access to high-tech education and resources, Laurentian is providing the youth of Northern Ontario and across the province the skills required to secure employment in the high-tech industry. While providing Northern Ontario businesses with the highly trained graduates, Laurentian is playing a vital role in the regional economic transformation to a knowledge-based economy."

The addition of the Brenda Wallace Reading Room and Computer Centre to the Laurentian campus was made possible through the generosity of the family and friends of the late Brenda Wallace, a prominent businesswoman and Laurentian alumnae. Also contributing to this state-of-the-art centre is the Eaton Foundation with a $50,000 donation towards this project.

The purpose of the Brenda Wallace Reading Room and Computer Centre is to promote life-long learning for the community and the students of Laurentian University.

Super-Build Expansion Under Way at Laurentian

This world-class environment, along with the facility's accessibility close to home and the family, are all perfect compliments to the memory of Brenda," stated Jamie Wallace, Brenda's widower and former Chair of Laurentian University's Board of Governors.

The total cost of this project is valued at $1,333,500. In addition to the $610,000 received from SuperBuild and the $50,000 from the Eaton Foundation, the Centre has also received $410,000 from private donors, and $250,000 from the Ontario Government's Access to Opportunities Program.

World March of Women 2000

Kimberly Dorion *
contributor

Around the world, women will be marching for hope, equality, peace and democracy between March 8, and October 17, 2000. Since the Quebec feminists launched the appeal for women's solidarity worldwide, the project has progressed by leaps and bounds. Today more than 149 countries are represented and over 3700 groups have signed up. Close to 80 national coordinating bodies have been established. In other words, right this minute, thousands of women are in the process of building a magnificent collective event.

Why is the World March of Women in the Year 2000 sparking so much interest? The answer lies in how women live today and the new world they would like to live in. Women everywhere are the main victims of neoliberal policy. They are poor yet live on a rich planet. They are oppressed by patriarchal regimes. In many countries they must fight for their most elementary rights: water, food, shelter, paid work, access to school and citizenship, freedom to choose to bear children or not, and so on. Some women, such as immigrants and lesbians, are particularly discriminated against and wish to see their rights recognized, both in their countries and internationally.

Women initiate, direct and participate in alternatives to poverty and violence. They have set up cooperatives, human rights groups, community kitchens, unions and women's centres. Now they want to go further, and this is what the March represents for them.

The World March resolutely takes issue with poverty and all forms of violence against women. It is proposing concrete solutions to both of these scourges. Its demands make up a program that is basic and no doubt necessary for many years to come. In this sense, the world rally at the United Nations headquarters on October 17, 2000 will be both a crowning point and a beginning, for other stages are sure to follow.

Everyone in the Laurentian community are invited to drop by the Women's Centre (room L-221, just past the Bookstore) and fill out postcards. They indicate your support for the goals of the Women's March. They will be sent to the headquarters of the United Nations to demand that the member states make concrete gestures to eliminate poverty and violence against women.

The official website for the March is great if you want to learn more (and there's a lot more to know!). You can find it at Http://www.ffq.qc.ca/

Restructuring of Laurentian University's Department of Interuniversity Athletics

In light of the over all budget process presently underway at Laurentian University, which prompts the institution to focus its resources and energy on overall excellence, and of the importance of the Athletics program at Laurentian University, a Department of Interuniversity Athletics Working Group was created in January 2000. Its mandate was to undertake a comprehensive review of the current varsity teams, and to meet the goals of highest performance on a provincial and national level, and fiscal responsibility. A key element in this process is the fact that Laurentian's Athletics program, which is directly funded through student incidental fees, has been affected by the decrease in enrolment at Laurentian in recent years.

Among the Working Group's objectives were the following: perform a full review of the current Interuniversity Athletics varsity teams and present recommendations for the varsity teams, review the human resources currently dedicated to Interuniversity Athletics, and review the current financial position of Interuniversity Athletics.

The Working Group also established an independent task force whose mandate was to evaluate the current Interuniversity Athletics varsity teams, according to a set of criteria and rank analysis procedure. The independent task force consisted of members from various sectors of

VS.

Laurentian will offer the following Interuniversity Athletics varsity teams: men's basketball, women's basketball, men's swimming, women's swimming, men's soccer, women's soccer, men's nordic skiing, and women's nordic skiing.

Varsity teams that will no longer exist are men's volleyball, men's cross-country running, women's cross-country running, men's hockey, men's track and field, and women's track and field.

The elimination of Laurentian's hockey team took into account the 1992 review process of varsity sports. The report stated that the University's hockey team had to become self-sufficient and that it would no longer receive funding from the Athletics budget. Eight years later, it has been demonstrated that the hockey team cannot be financially self-sufficient and is unable to raise enough support from both the University and Sudbury communities.

the University community, including representatives from the student associations, alumni, Athletics, Board of Governors, and faculty.

As recommended by the Department of Interuniversity Athletics Working Group, Laurentian University has made the decision to focus its energy and resources on eight varsity teams. The University recognizes that these teams have the potential to consistently attain national recognition and success. As of September 2000,

Laurentian University Removes Writing Competency Requirement

On Thursday, June 15, 2000, the Senate of Laurentian University voted in favour of removing the institution's Writing Competency requirement. The decision was made following much debate, and in response to the recent budget committee decision to close the school's Centre for Academic Writing. The centre was responsible for the administration of writing competency tests and providing tutoring services to those students in need. Patrick Leach, President of Laurentian's Student General Association feels that "the removal of the writing competency requirement was a necessary response to the closure of the centre". Leach justifies his view in stating that "it is unfair of Laurentian to maintain a writing requirement when the administration is unwilling to provide the means for students to develop their writing skills. The policy change will take effect as of June 30, 2000 and will apply to all students, new and returning.

Laurentian Suffers a Loss

The Jesuit community of Sudbury announces with regret the death of Father Robert Toupin who passed away peacefully after a lengthy battle with cancer, Thursday, June 14th, 2000 at the Jesuit infirmary, St. Jérôme, Québec, at the age of 76 years. He is survived by two sisters, Simone and Eloïse, a brother Olivier, relatives and friends as well as his Jesuit confreres. Born in Montréal, Québec, February 5th, 1924, he studied at St. Ignatius College in Montréal where after completing his undergraduate studies in 1945, he entered the Jesuit Order in Montréal. He was ordained priest June 18th, 1959 by Cardinal Paul Émile Léger, Archbishop of Montréal. After completing his studies in Philosophy and Theology in Montréal, he studied history at the University of Toronto where he obtained a Master's degree. He pursued his studies in history at the Sorbonne, University of Paris, for a doctorate. He then went to St. Jérôme, Québec, where he continued his research work in the Jesuit archives. Funeral mass was celebrated Saturday, June 17th at 10:00 am.

EDITOR'S CORNER...

What's a Lambda (λ)

by Mat Thompson
Editor In Chief

Four years ago when I received my Frosh/orientation package from Laurentian, I pulled out a small, strange looking newspaper called Lambda. I was interested right away because I had always heard about university newspapers, but my first reaction when looking at the cover was probably the same as yours... what the hell is a Lambda?

The answer to that question is strange, but what we are is the official bilingual newspaper of Laurentian University. We have been distributing papers on and around the Laurentian University campus since 1961 and don't ever plan on stopping. LAMBDA covers everything from news, sports, arts & entertainment and francophone issues. We also include feature stories that cover issues on campus and everyday life in general. LAMBDA is a weekly newspaper that hits the stands every Thursday morning around 11am. We have never missed a deadline in the four years I have worked here and this year will be the same.

The name LAMBDA, as we finally found out, is from the Greek letter 'L'. Since the newspaper was started in the 1960's, many of us had some pretty 'high' ideas as to where the name actually came from. Of course most of us were way off, but I think our stories were more interesting than the real one. We are named LAMBDA because the first letter in Laurentian is the 'l', and with a stretch of the imagination our founders came up with LAMBDA (λ). I know its a strange name, but once you are here, you never forget it.

This is my second year as Editor in Chief and fifth year (yes, I am a career student) at Laurentian. I first worked as the Entertainment Editor of the paper before moving up the chain of command into the Editor position. In that time LAMBDA has undergone many changes and LAMBDA has had to deal with some pretty serious issues not only in the paper, but also in our office. There are many changes that will occur in LAMBDA this next year and the major one will be our staff. Almost every position in the paper is open and we need writers! Many former staff members have graduated and others have left for other universities. Just look at the positions to the left and you will see how desperate we really are!

LAMBDA has always had great staff, and this year we will be recruiting extensively to fill the positions of editors, columnists and staff writing positions. We accept submissions from all students here at Laurentian on almost any topic. Because LAMBDA is autonomous from all student organizations here at Laurentian we can cover what we want, when we want.

LAMBDA covers a broad range of topics in the news section from university to local to world news, the feature section (which is under re-construction as I write) covers not only relevant issues, but also takes a strange twist with topics like Kraft Dinner, Coffee and our yearly wrestling issue 'Wrestlepalooza'. The Arts and Entertainment section will always bring you current music reviews, along with movies, internet sites, arts briefs and the ever so popular 'Psycho Letters From Nick'. You just have to see these letters to believe them. Our sports section fell into trouble last year with no one to cover games and hopefully we can regenerate the section with what sports remain here at Laurentian.

Submissions don't have to fall directly under these sections as our rule is basically whatever you want to write about is fine with us (as long as we don't get sued). We have weekly columnists who voice their opinions on every topic imaginable, weekly comics by Laurentian students and even a weekly wrestling column that I started. And with such a huge wrestling following here on campus, as long as I am in charge you will see wrestling in LAMBDA. So as you can see, write what you want, we just want you to come and work with us!

If you want to become part of the LAMBDA staff, or just submit an article, letter to the editor or a complaint (my favorite), you can always stop by the office on the third floor above the SGA office. Our (hopefully) newly painted office is a SCE 301, just up the big blue stairs in the middle of the Student Centre. you can also contact us at (705) 673-6548. I know your first few weeks are going to be hellish, but stop by anyway, we are not your typical student newspaper!

A Message From The President

Dear Students,

On behalf of Laurentian Board of Governors, professors, support staff and administrators, and on my own behalf, I would like to welcome you to Laurentian and wish you a very successful academic year.

We are celebrating this year our 40th anniversary. In today's society, change is the only constant. As technology takes on a more crucial role in our daily life and in the way we learn, we must ensure that the human aspect of learning follows a parallel curve. Universities have a responsibility to adapt to these new realities.

At Laurentian, facing these new challenges and adapting to our quickly evolving world is part of our reality and our commitment to you, our students, our partners.

Have a great year at Laurentian!

Sincerely

Dr. Jean Watters

President, Laurentian University.

Un Mot Du Recteur

Chers membres de la population étudiante,

Au nom des membres du Conseil des gouverneurs, du corps professoral, du personnel et de l'administration, je vous souhaite la bienvenue à l'Université Laurentienne ainsi que beaucoup de succès dans vos études.

Nous célébrons cette année notre 40e anniversaire. Dans la société d'aujourd'hui, le changement demeure le seul facteur constant. Et comme la technologie est appelée à jouer un rôle plus important dans la vie de tous les jours et dans notre façon d'apprendre, l'aspect humain de l'apprentissage doit suivre une courbe parallèle. C'est pourquoi, les universités doivent s'adapter à cette nouvelle réalité.

À l'Université Laurentienne, le besoin de révéler ces nouveaux défis et de s'adapter aux changements fait partie de notre nouvelle réalité et de notre engagement envers vous, nos partenaires. Profitez pleinement de votre année à l'UL.

Sudbury

Rocks, Rocks and more ROCKS!

July/August, 2000 / juillet/août, 2000

by Mat Thompson
Editor In Chief

So, you have made your decision to come to Laurentian, and many of you will be moving here to Sudbury. Like many of you, I had never been to Sudbury in my life before making my choice to come here for school. Moving away is pretty scary, but to me the new city seemed more intimidating than the school. Luckily I had roommates that had lived here for a few years before me, but just in case you don't have that luck, I'll give you a quick tour of the different scenes in the Sudbury area.

Laurentian is located in the South End of Sudbury near what is known as Four Corners. The South End has basically everything you need, but you can always venture into the downtown core or New Sudbury. Since the school is surrounded by lakes and conservation areas, there is only one road in and out, which means you either need a car, a friend with a car, or a bus pass. But once you have the means, you can go anywhere.

The bar scene is probably on the mind of most frosh and Sudbury has everything you need. There are sports bars, dance clubs, pubs, pool halls and even a few live music venues. Everyone has their own favorite, and it is up to you to find your style bar and stick with it.

Sudbury's music scene is one thing you will fast become acquainted with. Local bands play all over town and garner some pretty big crowds at their shows. You can catch local bands opening for bigger acts at the Sudbury Arena, playing group shows of three or more bands at places like The Grand or you can always check out the nightly acts at The Townhouse who boast (and deliver) a live act every night of the year. Most local bands have their own CDs out and a few are trying for recording contracts. Laurentian's own nickelbender will fast become a name you will know and recognize as they play all over the town and help pump up LU sporting events with parties and shows almost anywhere.

Sudbury has a very large arts scene that I have only started to become aware of this past year. Every day of the week you can find a poetry reading, art exhibition, performance, play or anything else going on somewhere. Your best bet to find out what is going on and where is in Directions, a monthly newspaper, that lists everything in the arts scene you need to know. Lambda will also expand its Entertainment section this year to include as much of the local arts scene as possible. The arts scene is centred in the downtown core, but is expanding rapidly.

Another main thing you will find in Sudbury are festivals. Every time you turn around there is another festival going on. This summer there is The Blueberry Festival, The Garlic Festival, The Northern Lights Festival Boreal, Blues for Food and many others. There are winter festivals, music festivals, French and English festivals and probably a festival for anything you can think of. If you visit this summer, check out what is going on and be a part of it.

The one festival that I love has to be Cinefest. Sudbury's very own film festival that runs for a full week in September. Film buffs will love Cinefest. Movies are screened all hours of the day and night and you can catch movies from all over the world as well as premieres of movies that won't hit theatre for months after Cinefest. Some past Cinefest hits included Reservoir Dogs, L.A. Confidential, The Sweet Hereafter, Shakespeare in Love, Happy Texas, A Simple Plan, Hard Core Logo and many others. If there was one thing in Sudbury that I would say you can't miss is Cinefest.

It is hard to tell a person all about a city in less than 1000 words. Sudbury basically has everything you would have in a big city, but in a smaller setting. There are coffee shops, theatres, bars, parks, sports, concerts, two other colleges (Cambrian and College Boreal)... and then there are the rocks! There are rocks everywhere! Every single building in this city had to be blasted out of the rock. Every once in a while you will feel a earthquake style tremor from the blasting that goes on at INCO. The first few times will probably scare you, but then after a while you won't know if it was blasting or just a small tremor (we have had a few).

Over half of the Sudbury area is covered by either lakes or conservation areas which will give you a lot of places to hike, explore, and of course snowmobile in the winter. I haven't mentioned the winter up here because I have tried to centre on the positives of Sudbury. Actually the past four winters have been very mild and it is nowhere near as bad up here as people say.

I hope this gives you a little more insight into the world of Sudbury, but there will always be someone to show you around. I have only been here for four years, but Sudbury has become like home. Now if I can just graduate I can get the hell out of here!!!

A SPECIAL GUIDE TO

Native Students Association

History

Established in 1994, the Native students Association has grown in both size and service through the dedication of council members, the Native community at Laurentian, and the S.G.A. The N.S.A. aspired to provide first nations students with cultural and social events that meet the various needs of students, in both an academic and personal nature.

The Native Students Association has gained the status of being an autonomous organization, which allows for the needs of First Nations students to be better served. Students are eligible to be both an N.S.A. and S.G.A. members so students are able to access services from both associations.

Location

The N.S.A. is located in room L-228 of the R.D. Parker building. Our office is open to the public, and we encourage you to stop by for any or no reason at all.

Events

Throughout the year the N.S.A. hosts a variety of events targeting all the different age groups of our association members. There our feast, children's Christmas Party, a semi formal, grad POW wow, etc. We have many new ideas for this year such as planning more family and cultural activities for the student that will be implemented this year, and are always open to hear your suggestions.

Native Orientation Week (N.O.W.)

Aanii,

Hello and Welcome to Laurentian University. Is this your first year at LU? No need to worry, we'll have everything ready for your arrival. Fun, Frosh packs & welcoming events are just a few things we have planned here at Native Student Services. I'm going to do my best to give everyone of you the same friendly, fun, eventful week I received from last years welcoming. This is the best time of your life so come on out and meet your fellow peers.

Feel free to drop by anytime. Come check out the computer lab or meet the peer assistants and staff. The Native Student Services office is located in the Parker Building, Second Floor, Room L222, right across from the LU Bookstore.

A Note From the President...

Aanii!! Welcome to Laurentian to all incoming frosh, and welcome back to the Vets. The N.S.A. hopes that you will get involved in the events that we host throughout the year, and remember if you have any ideas to contact us and let the council know. The N.S.A. represents both native and non-native students on campus, and it is your needs that we are aiming to meet, so bring forth your innovative ideas and we'll do our best to implement them.

There is a strong native community here at Laurentian, which works hard to provide cultural basis to the various social and academic events that are hosted throughout the year. As you're up coming president I look forward to the upcoming year and I am excited about the activities that I hope to implement that will be cultural and family orientated. Don't be afraid to get involved or ask question. Everyone is friendly, and more than willing to take the time to help out. The N.S.A. is easily accessible, and you can ask to see any of our council members if you so desire. We have an exciting year ahead, and hope that you will get involved. Any questions or concerns can be addressed by calling (705) 675- 1151 ext.3004 or email. NSA@nickel.Laurentian.ca

ATTENTION!

Orientation Or Disorientation???

This is it!!! Orientation Week! Lots to do in one short week: Moving in, meeting people, registration, language testing - These are things you have to do. BUT there is often much going on during Orientation week which you do NOT have to do. Know the difference!

You do not have to participate in any hazing-related activities which make you feel uncomfortable. These include:

- alcohol consumption
- "midnight aerobics"
- behaving or dressing in a manner that undermines your self-esteem or makes you feel uncomfortable (ex. T-shirts with offensive slogans/pictures)
- engaging in any activities which risks the security of your person

The most important thing you have to remember is to trust your instincts. If you feel uncomfortable about participating in any activity, DON'T!!! If you are feeling forced to do so, tell someone in a position of authority!

Spiritual Life Services

Come walk with us!

Spiritual Life Services is a strong viable organization that cares about the students. It acts as a compassionate and humanizing presence on campus. By bringing together students from diverse backgrounds, it also aims for students' personal and spiritual growth. Furthermore, it provides a place where loneliness and alienation can be offset by a helping presence as well as a safe place to talk and open up about personal concerns.

Activities of all kinds are planned for the upcoming school year and students are encouraged to participate. From the Walk in Nature in September to the Third World Experience in May, there is something to interest everyone.

- Visit to Cecil Facer Institution for young offenders
- Serving soup at Elgin Mission and listening to visitors' stories
- Singing at Extendicare Residence for older people
- "Think Fast" - 24 hour fasting for the Third World
- Food Drive for Food Bank on Campus
- Time for prayer
- Coffee House - share your talents
- Moonlight Walk - one night of reflection
- Bible Study
- Clowning on Campus
- Third World Experience
- Music Marathon with one of the Chaplains
- Nature Walk
- and other things you might suggest or organize

Service methods include counseling, discussion, and reflection groups, prayer meetings and religious services as well as social functions and visits to hospitals and prisons. There is also a Student Volunteer Peer Ministry. This organization supports and promotes the objective of Laurentian Campus Ministry "Awareness-Visibility-Accessibility of Spiritual Life on Campus". These volunteers inform the Laurentian community of upcoming events and are willing to share about personal perception and understanding of spiritual life on campus.

Although Spiritual Life Services is multifaith, each of the Federated Universities operates its own chaplaincy service for a separate religious denomination:

Huntington University:
United Church
Dr. Kenneth MacQueen
(705) 673-4126, ext. 204;

Thorneloe University:
Anglican Church
Dr. Donald Thompson
673-1730, ext. 0

University of Sudbury:
Roman Catholic Church -
(705) 673-5661
Fr. Ronald Perron, s.j., responsible for University Parish

Other spiritual services are available in the Sudbury area for those who are not of the denomination listed above.

For assistance, contact the following on campus:

Baha'i Tradition - Jennifer Rendell, Geology Dept., 675-1151, ext. 6575
Hinduism Tradition - Dr. Niranjan Mishra, School of Engineering, 675-1151, ext. 2257

Opening of the Academic Year Eucharistic Celebration

Auxiliary Bishop Paul-André Durocher of the Diocese of Sault Ste. Marie will come to celebrate the opening of the academic year with a Eucharistic celebration on Sunday, September 10, 2000 at 11:00 a.m. in the Canisius Hall of the University of Sudbury. Mass will be followed by the blessing of the Garden of Peace, a millenium project, at the front of the University of Sudbury and followed by a BBQ at the Lucien Matte Residence. Students, Staff and Faculty are all welcome!

It is an opportunity for Christians of the Roman Catholic tradition to come together, but all people of goodwill are also welcome. Let us remind each other the message of Jesus: "Love, peace and justice are the true way of life!" You are also welcome at any other time.

A Room of Our Own On Campus

The L.U. Women's Centre does more than just hand out condoms! It's located on the second floor of the Parker Building, just past the bookstore in room L-221. It's a woman-friendly space, with a lounge in the back reserved for their use. We have resources such as books, pamphlets and information about campus and community services for women.

Working as a collective team in which everyone has a voice in making decisions, the volunteers help to create a supportive environment. The Centre's philosophy recognizes that social and institutional discrimination against women exist in our society. The goals for people involved with the Centre are to educate, sensitize, and create awareness about women's issues and work towards a better environment for L.U. students.

The Centre promotes healthy lifestyles and supports a pro-choice philosophy. This isn't just about abortion, but about every kind of decision women face in their daily lives; they are the ones who can best define their own experiences, their own needs, and their own goals.

Women's (Cyber) Space

Tired of looking for cool stuff about women and the 'Net...and getting endless porn sites instead? Here's a few sites of interest, and they were checked in June to make sure that they were still there. There's nothing more frustrating than typing in the URL and discovering that, lo and behold, the website has disappeared.

No clue on how to search the Web effectively? Lessons are available at <http://www.angelfire.com/in/virtualibrarian/index.html>

To get info for projects about women, there's nothing like the accessibility of the Internet. Sometimes, though, the sites you hit really suck. To avoid them, you can read reviews that evaluate websites focussed on women's topics at <http://www.library.wisc.edu/libraries/WomensStudies/fc/fchelga.htm>

To browse an informative and attractively designed site, check out <http://www.girltech.com/> They have info on sports, girl friendly sites and girls in the news.

Research materials for students, activists and scholars interested in women's struggles worldwide are available at <http://www.cddc.vt.edu/feminism.index.html>

Sistahspace at <http://www.sistahspace.com> speaks to women of color, especially Black women. it features art, women making films, entrepreneurs, surveys and links to other sites.

Travelling can be an unpleasant experience, especially for a woman alone. The Journeywoman site is designed for women who want to travel but who would like some info on things like taking the subway, travelling solo, eco adventures, spas, female-friendly city sites, what to wear and how to dine alone without being harassed. Find it at <http://www.journeywoman.com>

Want to know where the legend for Disney's Mulan came from? Go to <http://www.eskimo.com/~chongls/main.htm>

This site it designed to teach the Chinese language, and you can listen to the legend in the form of a song, or you can simply read the translation.

Get Involved With WUSC

What is WUSC?

World University Service of Canada (WUSC) is a network of individuals and post secondary institutions who believe that all peoples are entitled to the knowledge and skills necessary to contribute to a more equitable world. Its mission is to foster human development and global understanding through education and training.

Laurentian's local committee is looking for new members. Come join us! We are a hip group of students, teachers and other persons interested in international development issues.

Why should YOU become an active member of Laurentian's local committee?

To make a difference and to...

- Meet people and link with other groups who are interested in international development issues.
- Learn about global issues and organize educational events that raise public awareness of international development.
- Participate in an array of on and off campus activities related to international development.
- Support the Student Refugee Sponsorship Program, which every year enables 30 to 40 refugee students to be sponsored by student groups and to pursue their education in Canada.
- Learn about WUSC overseas programs for students.

Sounds Interesting? Get involved! We will be in the bowling alley during clubs days or contact us now! E-mail deniset@hotmail.com or call Jorge Virchez at 675-1151, ext. 3359

Well Hello to everyone and hope you are having a great summer!

Here at the SGA we have been busy little voyageurs planning for the upcoming school year, including some great plans for a one of a kind frosh week. So please, keep your eyes and ears open for a great concert announcement and for some fun events open to everyone.

We are here to make sure that everything is running as smoothly as possible for you here at Laurentian and adding some fun events and entertainment into the mix to help you cut loose and relax when the time comes. In closing, I hope you all enjoy the rest of your summer and we look forward to seeing you all at the first annual SGA Beach party during frosh week.

P.S. Why not take a gander at some of the tips enclosed as they sure did help me when I came here three years ago, and please feel free to call me or any of the Executive and staff if you have any questions.

- $ Draw up a realistic budget for the year. Compare it with your finances to see if you'll fall short. (Remember be honest, you do want to have fun too!!!)
- $ Cook in batches and freeze leftovers for future meals. They'll curb any temptations for ordering pizza, believe me you'll order enough anyway. (also if you live with others consider cooking together, it can also help to cut down costs.)
- $ Look for cheap entertainment on campus such as club nights, movie nights or attending our own Pub Downunder.
- $ Don't buy groceries at a convenience store, where prices are higher. (if you live on campus, hop on our Saturday Grocery Bus and get all you need with convenience).
- $ Avoid credit cards (why do we need more debt?)
- $ Avoid restaurants where taxes and tips can add up 30% to the cost of a meal. (or at least do it rarely). Hold potlucks or if in Rez hold floor dinners, they are always a good time.
- $ To increase the odds of having money in the bank for the next school year, start inquiring about summer employment either during Christmas or Spring Break.

Johanna's PACKING list for university

- clothes/shoes-remember all season, as it is warm when you arrive and it gets cold mighty fast. Don't forget the hat, mitts and snowpants, you will use them.
- sporting good (runners, ball gloves, hockey skates)
- dishes/utensils • pots & pans/mixing utensils • toiletries
- towels • sheets, blankets, pillows (and don't forget to bring or buy laundry detergent as you do have to do your own now!)
- school supplies (paper, pins for bulletin board, pens, calculator etc...)
- alarm clock (some classes start at 8:30am especially if you are in Phys.Ed.)
- CD player/stereo (organize with your roommate if you have one)
- duct tape - it fixes everything • pictures of friends and family
- posters for decoration • hangers • extension cord or power bar
- little desk top lamp • camera • depending on where you live perhaps a toaster or kettle (never hurts to ask questions)
- spirit and enthusiasm for frosh week and the rest of your stay here at Laurentian
- NOTE: if you are going to buy groceries and or beverages, remember it is the Long Weekend and you should do it that Sunday when you arrive at Residence or your apartment/house.

Placement Centre

The purpose of the Placement Centre is to assist graduates and undergraduates to obtain permanent, summer, or part-time employment and to assist employers wishing to recruit at Laurentian University. All students seeking any type of employment are urged to register at the Placement Centre early in the school year. Employers are encouraged to have their on-campus interviewing dates finalized as early as possible. The services of the office are also available to Alumni of the University. The centre also provides employment counseling. Students are invited to make use of the centre's library which contains literature on a wide range of occupation.

Many employers arrange on-campus interviews at the University as part of their personnel recruiting program, and appointments with these employers' representatives can be arranged for students. Notice regarding employment opportunities of all kinds are published and posted on bulletin boards at various locations on campus. Jobs are also posted on the University's Internet.

The Counselling and Resource Centre

The Counselling and Resource Centre provides a wide range of services to support students and enhance their quality of life at Laurentian. The staff includes professionally trained counsellors and psychologists who are available to help with personal and career related concerns.

Counselling sessions are held in a relaxed atmosphere and are strictly confidential. The Information Centre maintains a small library that contains a variety of career and occupational information, up to date university and college calendars, information on overseas opportunities, books on personal development, etc. Most material found in the Center may be borrowed for a period of two weeks.

Throughout the year numerous workshops are offered on career and personal issues. Look for posters indicating the dates and times of the workshops or pick up a brochure at the Centre.

Finally, the peer tutoring program is an important part of the Centre. Students who are experiencing academic difficulties are encouraged to apply for a tutor. We look for competent upper year students to become tutors; we offer $8.00 per hour. Our services are FREE OF CHARGE to Laurentian staff and students.

Where to find us: We are located around the corner of the bookstore at the very end of the hall. 2nd Floor, R.D. Parker Building, Room L-210. <http://142.51.1.6/www/crc/ehome.html>

Letters From Nick

c/o Lambda's Entertainment Section
Inside Nick's Twisted Little Mind
INS ANE

Do I ever love Las Vegas. The lights, the fast money, the miles and miles of tourist traps willing to bankrupt you eighteen times before your wallet hits the ground, and let's not forget the million and one businesses that inquiring minds can harass for important information. Well, maybe not IMPORTANT information per se, but it's still fun to take a poke, or two at them to see what they'll say.

Dear Sahara Hotel,

I am so excited! Next summer I am heading off to beautiful Las Vegas, and I am already wetting my pants (figuratively of course) with excitement. My brother and I are planning to explore all that Las Vegas has to offer, including staying in your hotel. There are just a few questions that I would like to ask. First, my brother has a particular medical condition which renders him violently allergic to the color tan. I am aware that the carpeting and drapes in your rooms are all of this colour, and I was wondering if it would be alright if we brought along our own rugs and curtains to set up in our room during our stay (don't worry, we won't steal your old ones...ha ha). Second, I was wondering if it would be alright if we brought sand into the room, to make it feel more desert-like. Don't worry, the sand will mostly get on our own carpets, and what we miss we'll vacuum up ourselves (we also have a portable vacuum cleaner). We just want to get the full Sahara experience...which is also why I would like to ask if we could bring a camel into the room. We have a family friend who lives near Las Vegas who specializes in animal training and could provide us with an appropriate animal for this very special occasion. I'm sure that he would let us display the camel in your lobby, so you could impress the guests with your Desert Atmosphere. You could call him Sahara Sam or something (and don't worry about his little 'accidents', we would clean up after him). Fourth, do you leave breath mints on the pillows for the new room renters? If so, we were wondering that, instead of leaving the customary one per bed, if you could arrange that thirty breath mints would be left on the pillow. My brother and I have a collection of breath mints from various hotels around the continent, and very few actually survive the trip home intact, and with thirty to bring home, our chances to have a Sahara breath mint specimen would be much greater. Well, I'm off to continue planning my trip to your wonderful city. I anxiously wait for the answers to my questions, and look forward to staying in your incredible hotel.

Sincerely,
Nick Stewart

I had such high hopes for the Sahara...no really, I did. Once again, I was disappointed...

Mr. Stewart,

First and foremost, allow me to congratulate your decision to stay at our Sahara Hotel and Casino. There are a few stipulations that we must first dictate before we can allow you to make a reservation. For varying reasons, we cannot allow hotel patrons to disassemble our rooms' draperies and carpeting to import their own. We here at the Sahara Hotel sympathize with your brother's plight and can gladly offer you a room whose color meets his very particular needs. To address your second question, we must request that you not import sand into the rooms. While our cleaning staff is sufficiently competent to take care of matters such as sandy floors, the carpets themselves might suffer permanent damage if subjected to large amounts of sand and as such we request that you withhold from bringing your own. We have frequently been lauded in trade magazines as well as by our extensive clientele for the distinctive theme and feel that our establishment possesses, and therefore we are confident that you would receive the full Sahara experience without the need for external paraphernalia. It is for this same reason that the use of a camel is not only unnecessary but constitutes a contravention of local health and safety laws. Finally, we here at the Sahara Hotel are always glad to demonstrate our appreciation of your business with the presentation of complimentary mints, though thirty of them would require an additional charge.

Once again, we look forward to your interest in our establishment. Your business is important to us.

Martha Barnett
Public Affairs Administrator
The Sahara Hotel

I guess my undying love for Las Vegas is a one-way affair. Even the infamous Sahara Hotel has rejected my adoring advances, curtains, camels and all. Hey, I wonder how ya get ahold of Wayne Newton...

The Age old Question

See how your friends' schools rank in the Light Bulb test...

How many Cambrian College Students does it take to change a lightbulb?
- Only one... but they get a masters degree for it!

How many Lakehead studentys does it take to change a lightbulb?
- None - Thunder Bay doesn't have electricity yet!

How many U of T students does it take to change a lightbulb?
- Two. One to change the lightbulb and the one to crack under the pressure.

How many Queens' students does it take to change a lightbulb?
- One. He holds the bulb and the world revolves around him.

How many Waterloo students does it take to change a lightbulb?
- Five. One to design the nuclear powered one that will never burn out, one to figure out how to power the whole university with the nuked bulb, two to install it, and one to write the computer program that will control the switch on the wall.

How many Trent students does it take to change a lightbulb?
- Eleven. One to screw it in and ten to support the bulbs sexual orientation.

How many Western students does it take to change a lightbulb?
- Five. One to change the lightbulb and four to find the perfect Hilfiger outfit to wear to the occasion.

How many McMaster students does it take to change a lightbulb?
- Two. One to change the lightbulb and the other to proclaim that they did it just as well as a Queens student.

How many Carleton students does it take to change a lightbulb?
- Two. One to change the bulb and the other to complain that if they went to a better school the lights wouldn't burn out.

How many McGill students does it take to change a lightbulb?
- One, but they can't do it on a Friday or Saturday night.

How many Brock students does it take to change a lightbulb?
- Seven. One to change the lightbulb and six to throw a party because they didn't screw it in upside-down this time.

How many York students does it take to change a lightbulb?
- Only one, but they need an instruction manual.

How many RMC students does it take to change a lightbulb?
- None. When night falls they either fire flares to see or they put on their nightscopes.

How many UBC students does it take to change a lightbulb?
- Twelve. Three to draw up the plan of attack, two to rally student support, one to change the bulb and the othersix to draw the pepperspray fire away from the cause!

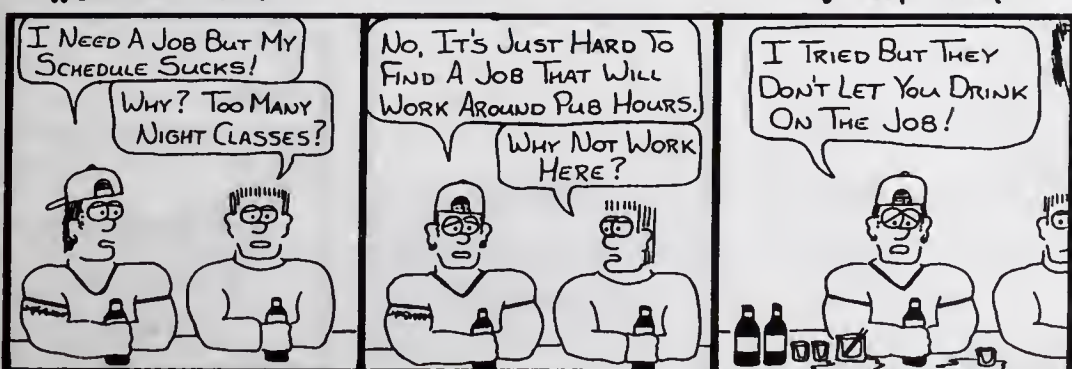

and last but not least...

How many Laurentian students does it take to change a lightbulb?

- None, electric lighting was cut by administration in a 13-1 vote... get used to it!

Although CKLU 96.7 FM has been keeping somewhat of a low profile in the community for the past while, there are some new developments currently underway which should reaffirm CKLU's mandate to serve those listeners who remain dissatisfied with public and commercial radio by providing an outlet for the broadcast of alternate forms of music and discussion vital to the diversity of expression in the Sudbury and area community.

For those who are not aware of CKLU's history, the radio station has undergone a number of significant developments over the years. It began with the operation of a small closed circuit system as Laurentian Radio from a room in the Single Student Residence at LU in September of 1984. An increase in SGA association fees in 1986 enabled the station (then known as CFLR) to acquire more equipment, move to its current location (Arts portable 1, otherwise known as the little pink shack in Parking Lot 4), and begin broadcast at 106.7 Cable FM. In November of 1990, it became the Laurentian Student and Community Radio Corporation, making it a legal entity distinct from the university. It was in 1996 that the CRTC approved the station's application for an FM license and the call letters were changed from CFLR (which was already being used by a radio station in Quebec) to CKLU.

Thanks largely to generous financial donations from members of the Sudbury and area community, various fundraising efforts and the hard work of volunteers, the past financial "situation" has been contained. CKLU does nonetheless rely on a major on-air funding drive each October to help keep it running. While the station receives a generous $14,000 in pledges last October, its projected goal for this coming October is $20,000. Look out for the big on-air funding drive which will also involve tons of events on and off campus.

For the time being, CKLU is now focusing on improvements within the station, especially in terms of the quality of programming produced. The station continues to broadcast high Canadian content, including locally based music, but it is looking at ways to improve spoken word content—particularly regarding LU and the Sudbury community so that it can broadcast more locally produced spoken word programs. The recent transformation of Thursdays into all Francophone programming will hopefully enable CKLU to better serve the interests of the Francophone community and attract much needed francophone volunteers to the station. CKLU is now also working with e-sudbury.com to broadcast programming over the internet; moreover, as part of the wireless project, CKLU will be bringing you the campus news and various updates on Laurentian's intranet. CKLU volunteers are also as always still hoping to God to get out of the little portable where the station is currently located and into a more suitable location!

CKLU - BIG.. LOUD.. AND PINK!!!

As far as this summer is concerned, keep your eyes posted for some smaller fundraising events—hopefully including a Cocktail party, pool tournaments, dinner theatre and more. CKLU is also once again hosting the open stage at the Bell Park amphitheatre as part of this year's Northern Lights Festival Boreal on Sat. July, 8th and Sun. July, 9th from noon to 2pm. Any musicians interested in a chance to play their original acoustic material can sign up by phoning CKLU at 673-6538.

As always, it is vital listener support that helps keep CKLU up and running. CKLU is volunteer-run, so quality is affected by what people are willing to put in. So if you think you can contribute some creative energy and feel like unleashing your knowledge of the wealth of music and/or issues that people never get to hear on mainstream radio, give the station a call at 673-6538. ext. 2.

The Lazy Edition

by Nickstradamus
Psychic Advisor

These are what I figure to be my most accurate predictions of the year. This accomplishes two things: one, it allows me to share with you what I figure to be the best prophesying I've done this year, and two, allows me to sit back and not come up with any new predictions for this issue. Hey, even prophets get lazy once in a while.

1. I predict that the Three-Headed Monkey of Shahazabad will strike terror and fear into the hearts of the world with its never-ending speeches on the value of peat moss.

2. I predict that a formless blob known as Quag will emerge from my lower intestine and terrorize the countryside.

3. I predict that the Seventy-Eight Hamsters of the Apocalypse will cause widespread panic by getting piss-drunk and vomiting on as many bowties as they can find.

4. I predict that Lester, the One-Eyed Mule Boy will become Maybelline's new spokesfreak for Phlegm Phantasia mascara/spackle/rat poison.

5. I predict that the Purple Trapezoid of the Apocalypse will hover over the town of Dauphin, Manitoba, bombarding the inhabitants with sufficient radiation to cause them to spontaneously de-evolve into primordial chicken soup.

6. I predict that the Hormonally Imbalanced Lobster Men From Mars will land on Earth, liberally distribute anal probings, and will start their own off-Broadway theatre troupe.

7. I predict that cannibalism will be legalized in Colorado, where fast food restaurants such as Jeffrey's, McCannibal's and Kentucky Fried Fibia will become all the rage.

8. I predict that a new holiday, Crapheadius, will be declared, where upon people are expected to shave off all their hair, get full body tattoos of dead squirrels and to smite each other at random with Spam cans.

9. I predict that the term for the leader of the United States will change from "President" to "Rockabilly Pimp Daddy".

10. I predict that the Short Fat Naked Tibetan Man will make a daring escape from his prison cell in the base of my skull, and, emerging victorious from my Not-So-Great-Intestine, will rename himself JimJim the Dog Faced Boy, and will rent out my chest cavity to Zimbabwean tourists.

11. I predict that Eddie Murphy will go insane and devour his own spleen after the horrendous box office failure of his recently starring movie, "Tupperware: The Musical".

MUSIC FOR THE MASSES

REVIEWS BY MAT THOMPSON

Mission: Impossible 2

If you only buy one soundtrack this summer it has to be this one. Mission: Impossible 2 has collected together some of the greatest bands to try and keep the music as fast paced as the movie.

You won't understand just how perfect this music is unless you have seen the movie. Metallica, Rob Zombie, Foo Fighters, Chris Cornell, Uncle Cracker, Buckcherry, Godsmack and even Limp Bizkit doing a kick-ass rendition of the theme from Mission: Impossible makes this album almost perfect. I say almost because for some reason, among all these Gods of rock, is Tori Amos. Sure my girlfriend will kill me for this, but when Tori Amos and Metallica are on the same album, there is something wrong.

So other than that little Amos misunderstanding this album is amazing. Pure rock, high energy and some of the best bands around. just the Limp Bizkit and Metallica songs are worth the money and the other 13 tracks (not including Tori) are like a bonus. This is sure to be the biggest album of the summer... do you want to be the guy who doesn't have it?

Hanson - This Time Around

When I first received this album for review I just laughed. The little MmmBop kids are back and ready to get trashed again. Then I listened to the album. Surprisingly, Hanson is showing some potential.

This Time Around, the second album released by Hanson, shows that the band have grown up somewhat and have really studied the craft of music making. Sure, there are a few pop-style songs, but it is tracks like This Time Around and Dying to Be Alive that show the sheer potential and talent of the group.

Instead of the little kid sound Hanson has adopted and almost perfected a blues-rock sound that is reminiscent of early Stevie Ray Vaughn mixed with Blaze Of Glory Style Bon Jovi. Their voices have matured, their style has improved, and a few more albums will make these guys huge! This is definitely an album worth checking out!

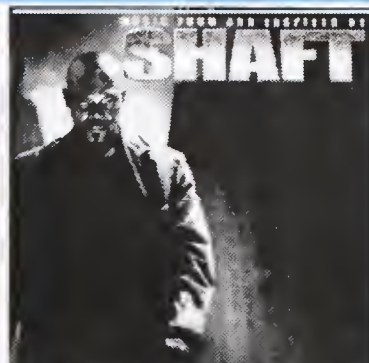

Pink - Can't Take Me Home

I actually had this album for over a month before I even noticed it. People asked me a few times for Pink when I was DJing and I had no clue who they were talking about until one night my girlfriend pointed it out in my mountains of CDs.

Can't Take me Home is probably one of the hottest albums right now by a young girl who has more talent than Britney, Christina, Mandy, Jessica and all the other pre-pubescent pop-tarts put together. Pink has the attitude of Missy Elliot, the talent of TLC and the sound of Destiny's Child all rolled into one great album. The first single There You Go has already exploded on the charts and there are 12 more to come. Not bad for a first album before turning 20.

Hip Hop/Rap/R&B fans will be amazed by this album, but it also has a great cross-over/mainstream feel that will appeal to most listeners. Pink is a perfect summer album for just cruisin' around.

Shaft - The Soundtrack

What's the soundtrack album that has everyone talking... SHAFT! That's right, the coolest man to ever hit the movie screen is back and he has a killer soundtrack to add that extra little bit of cool.

Of course the album starts off with the Academy Award winning Theme From Shaft by (Chef) Isaac Hayes. That theme is probably just as popular as the James Bond theme, and both just set the mood for their respective movies. R. Kelly appears on the soundtrack with two tracks, the slow-groove Bad Man and the more up-beat Up and Outta Here. Just these three songs make the album worth buying, but there are many more starts on the soundtrack including Donell Jones, OutKast, Mystical, Angie Stone, Parle' (featuring Jadakiss and Eve) and many more. The album is a nice collection of classic groove with modern hip hop.

I was upset that Busta Rhymes wasn't on the album, but all in all the album is a definite must have for Shaft fans. Don't miss it!

Kid Rock - The History Of Rock

Ever since the Undertaker returned followed by American Bad Ass I have been waiting to get this album! Devil Without a Cause proved to everyone that Kid Rock had talent, but this album is almost sheer perfection.

The History of Rock is the best example of what the future of rock is. Kid Rock grew up listening to AC/DC, Grandmaster Flash and even Johnny Cash and instead of being narrow-minded, Kid Rock learned from different styles and came up with a sound that makes everyone stand up and listen. He can rock with the best of them, but all the other influences come through in his music. My Oedipus Complex depends on classic guitar work, Born to Be a Hick falls into rockabilly country and 3 Sheet to the Wind explores the new world of metal/rap.

Many people claim that Kid Rock is a flash in the pan, but I think he will be around for a long time. He reinvented metal and rap, and will always rule the sound.

Eminem - Marshall Mathers LP

I still don't know what to think of this album. I have listened to it a few times, and I will admit that there are some very redeeming qualities, but after an encounter with an annoying neighbor, I still have issues with Eminem. I will admit that The Real Slim Shady is catchy and he has some pretty intelligent insights in the song, but the rest of the album leaves a bad taste in my mouth.

The other day I was watching TV and all of a sudden (from 8 floors down) all I could hear was Eminem. Some jerk from my building was washing his car and blasting some of the worst music I ever heard. I don't know if it was because of the situation but the music sucked! Maybe it was because it was forced on me, maybe because I was trying to watch my tape of Monday Night Raw, but from that point on, this album just isn't as interesting or good.

I know Eminem has fans, but this album doesn't make me want to admit that I could be one!

Matchbox 20 - Mad Season

I don't know what it is about this album but I can't stop listening to it! The first Matchbox 20 album never really interested me, but there is something hypnotic about this album that makes me listen to it over and over!

There is no single reason why this album is so good. Everything about it is amazing. I thought since Smooth was beat to death on Sudbury radio that I wouldn't want to ever hear Rob Thomas' voice ever again, but this makes me forget that whole Smooth torture-fest. Every song on the album stands out on its own but some of my favorites are Black & White People, Last Beautiful Girl and Mad Season. To me it is like the Matchbox 20 has exploded out of their shell and there is no way to not love the album.

I could go on and on, but I think you should just get the album and see for yourself!

Finger Eleven - The Greyest of Blue Skies

This is one of the perks of this job. I get to listen to advance copies of albums way before they are ever released. My latest advance release is a four track sampler of the new Finger Eleven album The Greyest of Blue Skies. I will admit I wasn't too thrilled with the last album, and I still wish they were known by their old name, The Rainbow Butt-Monkeys, but this sampler shows promise.

Finger Eleven's sound seems to have become a little harder, delving into the world of heavier rock instead of trying to stay afloat in the ever-expanding sea of alternative groups. Of the four tracks, First Time stands out as the best of the bunch but Drag You Down and Stay & Drown are powerful too.

The Greyest of Blue Skies is going to be available later in the summer and is definitely worth checking out!

Britney, Much and Hip

by Mat Thompson
Music Reviewer

It is time once again for me to warn all the masses out there about albums that the record companies will send out as sure-fire gold records that are just gold-plated crap! The funny thing is that these are three of the biggest selling albums right now.

Britney Spears - Oops... I Did It Again

"Oops I did it again! I made a bad album! You think I'm great! and sent from above! but I'm not that talented!" Sure, Oops is a pretty catchy song after a two-four and a few shots but the whole album is just teeny-bop garbage that all sounds the same. And any self-respecting Stones fan would want Britney dead for her brutalization of Satisfaction. Back to the Musketeers baby!

Much More Music Volume 2

Do you have insomnia? Counting sheep won't work? Do I have the deal for you! For just a mere $19.99 I will send you a CD jam-packed with 17 of the worlds worst songs that will be sure to put you to sleep! Sure, the names on the album sound good (Barenaked Ladies, R. Kelly, U2, fastball), but this is like a B-sides album gone bad. The songs are slow, boring and just not the music you want to play when having a party. This is not summer music, well, maybe if you are 40!

Tragically Hip - Music@work

I hate the Hip and if you are coming to Laurentian you are going to have to deal with the fact that I, a truly proud Canadian cannot stand this band. For four years people have tried to change my mind, and with an album like this I am going to stick to good Canadian bands like The Headstones! Long Live Hugh Dillon!!!
